About

Sentach started life on the 16th September 2015. It was a test bed for the business ideas of Dion Patelis. From humble beginnings in a shared office space in the Byron Bay Dion began analysing and testing one business after another. He was looking for a niche. The interesting discovery was that the ability to objectively analyse businesses is quite a unique niche. He realised after a while that rather than trying to find something new, it easier to just look for what's old and has been working for a long time. Then merge with it. Slowly systems came together. It took till about 2019 to start properly implementing theories. Sentachs first purchase was in Westpac Bank Australia in August of 2020. Many small incremental skills have joined together to reduce drag and fly efficiently through the atmosphere of companies.

Directors letter to shareholders

Dear Shareholders,

I believe that when local people own local businesses the environment is going to be given higher consideration. If a business I own shares in is not doing the right thing environmentally, I am more likely to say something about it as I feel partially responsible. Generally I am looking at Australian companies to buy into where possible as it's my local area. If I'm a shareholder, I'm the business owner. No matter whether I own five shares or five hundred thousand. Something in my mind changes toward the company.

For example, owning Harvey Norman shares has changed the way I look at the business when I walk into a Harvey Norman store. I look at the way it's operating, customer service, the experience, quality of products, how it's interacting with the outside world. I wonder how it's dealing with its waste? How are the staff treated? Does it support other businesses local to itself?

Of course there are some industries whereby overseas purchases are optimal and I am not totally ignoring them.

The main strategy I employ is to buy fundamentally strong companies with a focus on a consistent flow of funds from day to day business. This creates ease in my mind and I hope in the share holders also. Thus the short term ups and downs are of little concern.

However if a stock price increases enough it means that the flow of funds are proportionately smaller, thus I'll move the resources somewhere else.

This is a nice thing about owning business in this manner. I can move in and out of industries easily and smoothly. I am not locked in anywhere specifically.

Things are not always what they seem once I start scratching the surface. It's not unusual to realise a companies real business is not what it appears on the outside. For example McDonalds is actually a real estate focused business, not a fast food business.

People ask about whether I am taking large risks and whether I'd be better off with real estate. Now I'm not criticising the direct investment in real estate, but sometimes I can buy a company which uses it's business to hold fantastic real estate which I couldn't easily purchase and hold myself. Thus I am investing in real estate or something basic and fundamental by buying into companies through their shares.

What's the forecast on the performance of Sentach? Rather than making vast predictions about the future, I am just going to talk about the past. In the following pages I show my historical track record of investments through to what is current. The net resultant is in the graph above showing the results of our short history. I feel I have done well for the share holders so far and heading forward I am confident that I can create a consistent flow of funds into the future.

A philosophy I like to employ is that of ratios taken from my experience designing physical finite wings, sails and fins. In designing these lift : drag ratios I try to reduce drag rather than increase lift. The ratio analogy can be brought across to performance motor vehicle design where a large part of performance is based on power : weight ratio. Rather than increasing power it is usually better to decrease weight to improve performance. In my mind the same applies to companies with the price : returns ratio. I focus on returns rather than the price which is the opposite of what the crowd is looking at.

I would also like to thank all the shareholders for their support.

Dividends

At this present time we are not paying dividends as it is advantageous to the shareholders to keep them within the company. Thus it will increase the share value instead by the amount which would have been paid as a dividend.

Once this advantage changes the estimation will be to pay dividends twice yearly with the franking credits flowing through to the receiver.

Fees

At the moment shareholders have one free outbound transaction per year. Dividend payouts are also free. After that there is a fee. There is several hours of paperwork involved to move funds back to a share holder. Our focus is to keep equity in shares in other companies which return an income. Thus may have to sell some shares to satisfy a share holders sale.

When we are able to list on the ASX then the above transactions will be through the broker of your choice.
